We see present moments and actions that are happening at this moment, as a clear picture before our eyes. The images from the series „Moving“ describe a transient moment.

We can exactly remember details, shapes and specific elements and also faithfully reproduce them, if necessary. Only over a certain period of time do these memories fade into misty shapes. Pictures break up and merge into each other. Truths vanish in a single moment. Just shadowy forms and feelings remain.

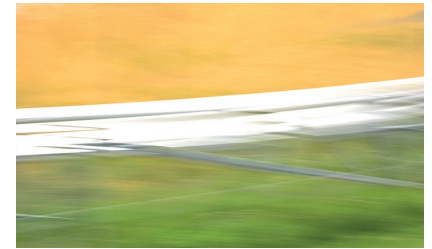

This exact process is reproduced in the works ‚Moving‘, because here the focus is not on a specific detail, but the viewer takes it in in its entirety.
