Here the relationship is shown between two opposite poles, which cannot exist without each other. „Night and Day“ is an interplay of infinite light productions. Depending on the lighting situation, objects or moments are interpreted differently. Light affects our mood and perception with its various brightness levels. Due to the different variations in light or our condition, we see situations through different eyes and gather new impressions. Sometimes, a piece of truth lies in the apparent contradiction and in the contrast.

The day revives us and brings us security. The night provides peace and relaxation, but also awakens our deepest fears.
