„Portrait“ is abstract shapes, lines, areas and related objects, which compose themselves in front of us into a human figure. Although they are only two dimensional, and not really existent, our mind manages to make them come alive.

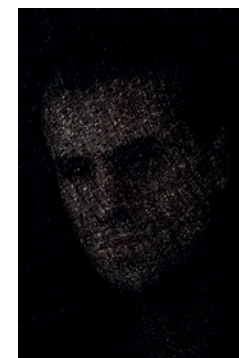

The image of a person can be represented and perceived in different ways. Here, the visual aspect plays a major role, but also our personal experiences and interests. We interpret our own emotions into a preceding impulse and create in our minds our own self-image and external image. In the same way that we mentally look for shapes in clouds, we see people in „Portrait“.
